During the last several years, state and regional networks have been formed to share best practices to improve program results. Federal agencies are coordinating with state and local governments to reduce costs and measure in a more outcome driven model. Outcome-focused grants are offering more flexibility for grantees to design individual programs. This web conference will drive real insight on strategies and measures for coordinated, not duplicative, government services. Some examples will be the new Federal/Local performance and resource decisions at the U.S. Justice Department, and the new Grants Guidance approaches to improving results.

Learning Objectives: Hear from experts who are working to coordinate services among federal, state and local entities in an effort to provide effective, efficient and outcome driven programs to the citizens.

Speakers:

- Ray Scher, Assistant Director, Office of Management and Budget at Miami-Dade County Miami-Dade
- Janice J. Lambert, Deputy Chief Financial Officer (CFO) and Deputy Assistant Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation Finance Division

Moderator: Jon Desenberg, Policy Director, The Performance Institute
